Footnotes

1 Window Frame Types

- Modern Timber joinery. Modern methodology whereby item arrives onsite in a frame, with frame matching finished depth of wall including cladding. Height and Width are the overall size, ie OUTSIDE the 'frame'.
- Traditional Timber joinery. These windows and doors reflect traditional methods of inserting joinery into older buildings with panels supplied and the frame built on site. Height and Width are the panel sizes, ie INSIDE the 'frame'.
- Frame Timber or Aluminium joinery. With timber, it is similar to modern but with frame having a set depth, suitable for many wall types, especially masonry. All Aluminium joinery is in Frames, as per industry standard.

2 System Families

In Revit, System Families are items like Roofs, Floors, Walls, Ceilings, Stairs, Fascias. This also includes Dimensions, Text, Hatches. Anything that can only be created within a Project. QARC4Revit has the unique ability to Drag+Drop these System Families into a project. We create all System Families for correct & immediate use. EG Walls have their external layer unlocked so you can use the Base & Top Extension option.

3 Annotations

Some annotations also exist within the QARC4Revit ARChetype template.

4 Floors, Roofs, Walls, Ceilings, Soffits

These System Families are provided in a range of framing sizes. Walls are additionally supplied with many choices of claddings on both sides.
